NAPPANEE HIGH SCHOOL
NAPPANEE, INDIANA
VOLUME XXXVII

We mix fun with work

Inside the walls of Nappanee High School the students busily mixed fun with work during the 1961-62 school year. Each year the school has grown larger. Halls became more crowded, and many new faces were seen as our student body increased. To provide additional space the study hall had to be divided into two class rooms; this necessitated using the multi-purpose room as the study hall.

The school offered complete programs in three different areas: a college preparatory course, a general course, and a commercial course. Twenty-two school sponsored organizations, plus a vigorous sports and a sports booster program were available.

Knowing that much was expected of them, the student spent long hours of tedious study on homework. Students remember well their burning the midnight oil on Thursday nights in order to finish English themes and to study for those government and history tests. But writing weekly themes and tests did not compare with the time spent in writing term papers which were required in various courses.

Yet school consists of more than studies. There were many fun and frolic filled occasions throughout the entire year. Teen Town dances, attempts to discover the prom theme, and the hope of defeating Elkhart in basketball were only several of the many highlights. These and other portions of friendly activities added variety to the otherwise serious study routine.

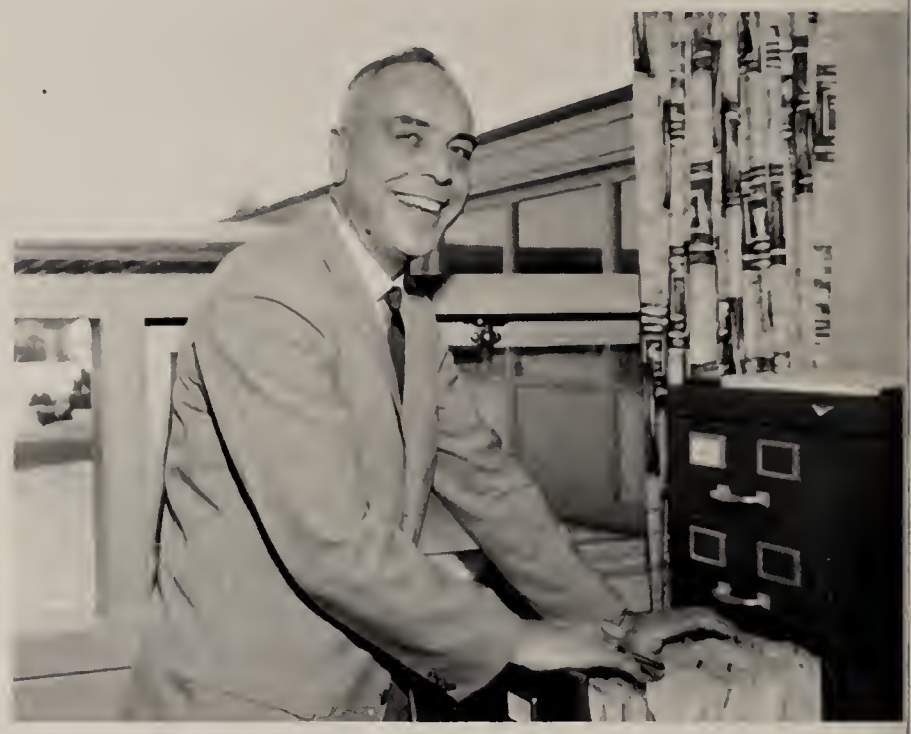
Portions of our Friends

The memories we have of friends we knew in high school will always be cherished. With them we shared unforgettable moments. With administrators and teachers we considered more serious ideas. With classmates and other students we enjoyed pleasures, exchanged problems, studied diligently, and bantered playfully.

We may forget some of the book knowledge gleaned from our high school days, but we will never lose the joy of having friends at Nappanee High School.

Their motto is efficiency,

Mr. Osborn takes time out from his responsibility of administering Nappanee Community Schools.



Mr. Weddle consults the file to examine students' permanent records.

The responsibility of coordinating the schools of the community into a system that merits the praise of other educators throughout the state falls into the capable hands of Mr. Osborn.

He is a member of the American School Administrators Association. The Indiana Superintendents Association and South Bend Field Chapter of Phi Delta Kappa are among the professional groups to which he belongs. He is a member of Nappanee Kiwanis club.

For relaxation Mr. Osborn cultivates a rose garden that is the envy of neighbors.

Planning academic curricula, counseling students, advising teachers, and scheduling school events are only a few of the principal's duties.

Mr. Weddle is currently a member of the Curriculum Committee of Indiana Secondary School Principals Association and the Nappanee Kiwanis Club.

Outdoor sports rate high in his preferences of activities. The golf course is a special haunt of his in the summertime; bridge is his recreation during the winter months.

keen leadership, and guidance.

Haskell Osborn, Warren Hawley, president Dale Christner, Loren Hahn, treasurer Joseph Kindig, and secretary Forrest Kendall meet to discuss business relative to the Nappanee Community Schools.

The Board of School Trustees is the administrative group whose responsibility it is to plan school policies, to employ qualified school personnel, to budget finances, and to execute all business relative to maintaining a high school that meets standards established by the North Central Association of Secondary Schools.

Mr. Christner, Mr. Kendall, and Mr. Kindig, who are appointed by the City Council, represent the City of Nappanee. Mr. Hahn and Mr. Hawley, who are appointed by the Trustee of Scott Township, represent the township in the Nappanee Community Schools organization.

Evelyn Templeton counts money belonging to the school's activity funds.

Mr. Weddle's secretary, Mildred Phillips, types the school records.

Such zeal for their profession

Implanting high standards of scholarship, leadership, and citizenship are goals set by a dedicated staff.

The entire school personnel was shocked by the death of one of its most revered teachers, Wayne E. Best, who had been on the faculty for twenty-six years. A college scholarship fund in his memory was dedicated by the Nappanee Classroom Teachers, students, and many interested citizens of the community.

Senioritis invades every corner

Marvin Eastlund, vice president; Carol Hollar, secretary-treasurer; and Donald Shaw, president like to show that they are "big" seniors.

After twelve long years of hard work, the class of '62 can finally say, "We've made it." The time has come when the seniors must put to use all of the things they have learned throughout their school years.

During their eighth grade year they moved into the new Nappanee High School, making theirs the first class to complete four years of high school at East Side High.

As juniors the class decided that they would be different; so they voted to hold the annual prom at the high school building. At first it made the seniors of '61 unhappy; but by the time the prom was over they admitted it was the greatest ever.

The senior year was the busiest and most exciting of all for these students. They worked tirelessly selling candy, concessions at the basketball games and wrestling matches, play tickets for A ROCKET IN HIS POCKET, and also NAPANETS. The money earned from these projects helped to finance the wonderful five day trip to Washington, D.C.

Seniors Don't Study All of the Time!

Two teams of senior girls, coached by Jane Lakins and Kathy Mitchell, battled it out in a mock football game. Of course, the mighty Bulldogs won!

Fortuneteller Jill Stahly predicts to Elaine Pippenger that our terrific cheerleaders Ric Coppes, Roger Holdeman, and Marvin Eastlund will cheer the Bulldogs on to victory.

No, Marvin Eastlund isn't crazy; he's just having a blast at one of those good old senior parties.

Poor N.H.S.! Isn't It Too Bad That We

Playing host to seniors at the traditional Junior-Senior reception requires a considerable amount of money in the treasury. For their fund raising project the juniors demonstrated their salesmanship by going beyond their goals in selling magazines. Betty Martin was high salesman and chose a record player as her well earned award.

Soon after the beginning of the second semester juniors were seen whispering stealthily when in the presence of seniors. Yes, they were trying to keep the reception theme a well guarded secret; that is a difficult feat when inquisitive members of the graduating class endeavor to learn all about the gala spring affair.

The juniors look forward to the days when they will be the privileged seniors at East Side.

Betty Martin, secretary-treasurer; Tom Dean, vice-president; and John Yeager, president, look over the selection of paperback books in the study hall.

Studies were harder this year;

Freshman officers Jane Kindig, secretary-treasurer; John Pippen, vice president; and Stephen Culp, president, spend a few spare moments studying in the library.

The poor freshmen really had to take a lot of ribbing from the upperclassmen because it was their first year as high school students. They were initiated and called greenhorns, but they realized that it was all in fun.

Their traditional class project was selling blue and white bulldog crested pens.

The freshmen worked hard, challenged by new and more difficult studies. They gained much experience by participating in high school clubs and activities, adding to some of their thrilling moments which made up their memorable first year of high school.

Portions of our Studies

Graduation from Nappanee High School indicates that a student has completed a minimum of sixteen units of study. Among these units are two majors with three full years of work in each. The student must also have earned credits in two minors of two units in each course.

By state law students are required to enroll in three years of English and one each of government and economics, mathematics, United States history, and science. A unit of health and physical education is necessary.

Many elective courses are available. Students who are interested in music and art find their talents challenged; mathematics and science are offered for those with special curiosity in those subjects.

Specialization in particular vocations is not neglected at N.H.S. Business courses, home economics, and woodworking are among the electives which often result in majors for many students. Many additional courses enable the graduate to have a diversified background.

English comprises ninety per cent of N.H.S.

College preparatory courses in English are offered to students planning to attend college. These classes provide intensive study of the elements of English. To practice the fundamentals of composition, students are encouraged to write one theme a week. Seniors are required to enter the V.F.W. essay contest. "America the Beautiful--How Long without Clean Water?" was the title of this year's essay.

Practical English is the choice of students who do not wish to follow a college preparatory course. These students learn the basic principles of written and spoken communication. A second semester of literature is included in each of the three years of practical English.

At the beginning of the second semester, English is replaced by literature. The seniors study English literature, the juniors American literature, and the sophomores and freshmen general literature courses. Short stories, drama, and poetry are included in each of these classes.

With the aid of the opaque projector, senior English students Carol Hollar and Linda Jensen give a speech on Medieval London.

In the practical English III class Mr. McKee adds a little humor to the lesson.

Lorene Stichter, Gary Golden, and Frederick Jensen check on the proper way to make a vocation's outline in English II.

Compliments of THE NAPPANEE LIONS CLUB

More students enroll in Latin and speech.

Genek Popowzak, a first year Latin student, illustrates and explains the Roman calendar to his classmates.

Latin is sometimes considered a dead language, but it comes to life at N.H.S. in the form of skits and games.

A game Latin is played by the students to help increase their vocabulary. This game is similar to Bingo; Latin words are used instead of numbers.

At the annual Roman Banquet guests come attired in Roman dress, eat Roman food, and enjoy Latin entertainment.

Because Latin is the basis of many languages, it is of vital importance in a high school curriculum.

Second year Latin students Maria Popowzak, Carol Holderman, Diane Meyer, and Barbara Senff practice their parts for the Latin play.

Miss DiCamillo's speech class reverently rehearses for the annual Christmas play, "The Birth of Christ."

Social studies broaden inquisitive minds.

Delving into government, economics, world history, and U. S. history, N.H.S. pupils examine the world. Term papers on Communism and reports about famous Americans and current events are added as outside assignments.

One semester of government and one of economics are required of seniors. Each senior is urged to attend at least one city council meeting to acquaint himself with local government.

U. S. history, required of all juniors, looks into facts of early American history, the Civil and World Wars, and discusses national and international problems.

World history pupils study ancient tribes and the Renaissance. Many students find that a vast majority of occurrences and decisions of the past have had a definite relationship to our lives.

While giving a special report on North Carolina, Diane Hare shows Jim Rock and Paul Lundal where that state is located.

World history students, Ralph Tobias, Terry Reasor, and Ralph Moore seem to enjoy the assignment Mr. Gunderman is giving them.

Randall Weddle, and Gary Schneck thoroughly read the newspaper so that they will be well prepared for current events discussion in government class.

Probing and testing, students try

Marvin Eastlund demonstrates slide rule calculations to the students in trigonometry class.

Mr. Hartle explains to his students how to solve algebraic equations.

Four courses in mathematics are taught at Nappanee High School, one of which is required for graduation. Because of irregularity in scheduling, advanced algebra was not offered, but it will be available next year.

Business mathematics is intended for students who do not want to major in mathematics or who are not following a college preparatory curriculum.

Solving written problems, quadratics, and square roots are only a few of the skills learned in first year algebra. Freshman students are encouraged to enroll in this class.

The geometry class includes mainly sophomores and juniors. Part of the course consists of making constructions and proving theorems by using previously learned assumptions and corollaries. In addition, geometry helps a student develop logical thinking.

Students in the senior mathematics class cover a variety of units. The main fields are trigonometry, modern algebra, analytic geometry, calculus, and solid geometry.

Greg Truex, Ron Foeckler, Wayne Berger, and Dennis Templeton write geometry proofs.

Mr. Robinson checks the problems of general mathematics students Roger Grimm, Victoria Hochstetler, and Linda Umbaugh.

Jeanette Wood, Jay Miller, and Danny Shaw await their turns at the microscope as Elaine Pippenger exams specimen.

Chemistry students Paul Lundal, Joan Noffsinger, Sandra Warren, and Leon Weaver demonstrate the diffusion of gases.

At least one year of science is required for graduation from Nappanee High School. This year biology, physical science, and chemistry, which is alternated annually with physics, are available.

Biology is offered primarily to freshman and sophomore students. During the first semester the study of plant life is emphasized. Each student purchases a disecting kit containing thirteen embalmed specimen which are examined to learn about the digestive, respiratory, and circulatory systems of various animals. This constitutes the second semester's work.

For those who prefer a general course, a year of physical science is offered. In this class students are introduced to the principles of astronomy, physics, chemistry, and electricity.

Chemistry is studied in either the junior or senior year. In addition to daily assignments and laboratory work, a student must enter either the Nappanee science fair or give a report on a science book.

Ralph Tobias, assisted by Mr. Copeland, proves that the warmth of hands creates the fast expansion of gases.

Home Economics and Shop develop

The home economics department offers four years of varied units for girls who are especially interested in the science of homemaking.

The freshman girls enroll in a semester of cooking; during the second semester they are required to make a gathered dress.

Included in the sophomore and junior years are courses in home nursing and management, child development, foods, and clothing. The sophomore girls must make a fitted garment. As juniors they construct wool, fitted skirts.

The sewing project of the senior girls is a fully lined suit. In addition to this sewing unit the girls study courses in nutrition and in marriage and family relations. The girls also learn to prepare special dishes such as shrimp creole.

Carol Rohr and Suzie Slabaugh learn the surest way to a man's heart.

unlimited ideas for the future.

To construct useful projects boys in woodworking classes must learn to use various types of hand and power tools. A finished product such as a table, desk, or cabinet means that the student has learned many phases of construction, from reading blueprints to the proper methods of applying wood finishes.

Students enrolled in mechanical drawing classes learn to draw machine parts by the use of instruments. T-squares, scaled measurements, irregular curves, and compasses are used. Drawing house plans to scale by applying techniques employed by trained architects is a part of the skill attained in this course.

Auto mechanics is a two hour course popular with boys who are interested in cars as a hobby or who might have a future vocation in mind. Students become acquainted with engines by disassembling and reassembling them; they do tune-up work or make major repairs involving rings and valves, working on their own cars or perhaps teachers' cars.

LaMar Berger and Jerry Neibert watch Michael McDonald cross-cut a board with a circular saw.

Richard Geyer learns to measure and draw machine parts to scale.

NAPPANEE ADVANCE-NEWS
"All The News That Fits"

Commercialists gain experience in business.

Mr. Lehman, substituting for Mr. Postma, checks Carol Zentz's accuracy on a five minute timed writing.

First year typing students warm up on the conditioning practices before they begin typing business letters.

A new course, office practice, was added to this year's curriculum. Learning to operate the dictaphone, adding machine, mimeograph machine, and to apply advanced methods of typing are the main objectives of this class. Learning filing techniques and typing material for the teachers and the school contributions for the NAPPANEE ADVANCE NEWS are also projects for these commercial students. They type stencils, mimeograph copies, and assemble pages of the D'BULLDOG.

Typing is an elective subject designed for students who want to go into secretarial work or who wish to acquire typing skills, which are helpful in writing term papers and themes faster and more neatly. Timed writing is practiced every day for the purpose of improving the students' speed and accuracy.

Bookkeeping is an introduction to the principles of accounting with their application to individual, partnership, and corporation records. Principles of business law, economics, and taxation are considered.

Jane Lakins and Russell McDonald save time in bookkeeping by checking their problems on the adding machines.

Other classes are also included at N.H.S.

Mrs. Rood instructs Alice Stutzman, Judith Seidner, Kay Smith, and Sherry Johnson in the application of proper water color techniques.

The art classes develop individual artistic expression through the students' work in crafts, graphic arts, commercial art, and design.

Much time is spent working with still life as well as with other subject matter in a variety of approaches. Various media are used such as water color, ink, pencil, charcoal, and oils, which gives the students an opportunity to explore, practice, and develop artistic abilities.

Members of the art classes arrange bulletin boards, decorate the halls before football and basketball games, and decorate for dances and banquets.

Barbara Slabaugh and Patricia Freed have fun throwing a medicine ball in gym class.

Jo Ann Ganshorn and Theodore Foeckler must clean the icy windshields before driving in Mr. Nelson's driver education class.

Portions of our Organizations

The students at Nappanee High School are kept busy not only with their studies, but also with extracurricular activities.

This year twenty-two club activities were offered to add special interest to East Siders' strenuous, every-day routine. These activities help to develop Christian character, to inspire new interests, to encourage a governing body, to practice leadership, and to create enjoyment.

N.H.S. emphasizes scholarship.

National Honor Society officers, president Gary Schneck, secretary-treasurer Carol Hoffer, and vice president Randall Weddle, are perplexed by the lack of space for the 1962 honor students' names.

Scholarship, service, leadership, and character are the traits a Nappanee High School student must possess to qualify for the National Honor Society. Fifteen per cent of each graduating class are chosen by the faculty of Nappanee High School.

Becoming a member of this society is one of the greatest honors that can be bestowed upon any student. The main purpose of the organization is to put more emphasis on academic work in our high school. Stressing the importance of striving for good grades and taking a serious attitude toward studies are the main goals of the society.

This year one project of the members was ushering at Nappanee Civic Theater productions. With the Student Council the group purchased an outdoor announcement board publicizing coming events at East Side High School.

Student Council stresses leadership.

As in the past the student council at Nappanee High School had a busy, active year. The council was responsible for conducting locker inspections, choosing assembly programs, supervising cheerleader elections, and aiding Mr. Weddle in handling school problems. The council also decorated the surge area for both Homecoming and Christmas. Arranging a "Blue and White Day" on which students wore school colors, the council created a typical presectional tourney atmosphere at East Side High.

A new student council constitution was written and a new committee was selected to help Mr. Weddle schedule school sponsored dances. Representatives elected by their respective homerooms in all except the senior class, and students elected to the National Honor Society comprised the membership of the council.

Deadlines plagued the NAPANET staff from September to June. In order to prepare a yearbook that represents an accurate summary of the 1961-1962 year at Nappanee High School, the editors spent infinite hours preparing dummies, photos, and copy.

An ever-increasing student body necessitates a larger yearbook; this year four additional pages were added to accommodate its growth.

It is with tremendous pride that the seniors and NAPANET staff present the twenty-seventh volume of the NAPANET.

Standing at attention are drum majorette Pamela Phillips accompanied by twirlers Cheryl Mullett, Deborah Callander, Jacqueline Pletcher, and Conda Searfoss.

Band council members Carol Hoffer, Karen Sue George, Rita Slabaugh, Thomas Dean, John Pippen, Mr. Webb, James Martz, and Roger Holdeman discuss plans for the band trip.

Drum majorette Pamela Phillips directed the marching band through many hours of practice to perfect the football half time shows. The bands also participated and tied for second place in a marching contest in Auburn, Indiana.

The concert band presented two concerts in Nappanee. The newly organized dance band performed at the second concert. Several band members participated in both district and state solo and ensemble contests, and two band members merited participation in the All-State Band. The group went on its biennial trip this year to Terre Haute; enroute it played a concert at Rochester, Indiana.

The band council, whose membership is composed of the band officers and one bandsman elected from each class, represents the senior band in working with Mr. Webb on various issues relative to band activities.

The intermediate band is composed of eighth and ninth graders. In addition to playing at the concerts, it presented one half time show. Many of its members participated in the solo and ensemble contest.

Enthusiasm, talent, and new robes,

Marietta Rogers and Janice Hollar practice in order to play the complicated accompaniment for the chorus.

Under the direction of Mr. Rambo, the high school chorus scheduled two concerts at which the mixed ensemble was featured. Combining with the bands the chorus gave its annual Christmas concert. On May 8 the spring concert was presented.

This year the group received new robes which were worn for the first time at the Christmas concert. The chorus also sent representatives to the combined chorus appearing at South Bend during Teachers Association. There many members had the opportunity of singing with more than seven hundred musicians.

At Penn High School the mixed ensemble and many individuals competed in the Solo and Ensemble Contest.

Letters were awarded to the seniors with three years of chorus work and participation in numerous concerts.

The Senior Y-Teens have enjoyed a very interesting year. Early in the fall the annual initiation picnic for the sophomores was held at Stauffer Park. The sophomores were slaves for the upperclassmen and had to do anything the upperclassmen ordered; this included eating onion and mustard sandwiches, and running around the track with their shoestrings tied together.

The girls learned many things from this year's programs including what a policeman's work is like and how the Dutch people live.

The Students of Science Club is composed of eighth, ninth, and tenth grade students who are interested in science. To remain a member, a student must enter a project in the science fair. The projects of the club this year were helping plan the Nappanee science fair and sponsoring a dance. The money earned from the dance was used to finance a trip to the Chicago Museum of Science and Industry.

The Tri-Sci Club gives persons interested in science an opportunity to broaden their knowledge of scientific developments by having speakers, films, and field trips. Members of the club must either enter a project in the science fair or write a science research paper. Planning the school science fair and taking a trip to the Museum of Science and Industry in Chicago were the features of the year.

Service is the keyword of the Senior Hi-Y. Throughout the year junior and senior boys helped to make the Nappanee Hi-Y chapter of the Indiana Young Men's Christian Association a worthwhile organization. Members of the club conducted the annual clothing drive for foreign children. The hat and coat check at each home basketball game provided the main source of funds for the club.

Special projects of the group included sending two boys to the Hi-Y leadership camp during the summer and planning to have a player scoreboard built for the gymnasium.

At the regular meetings many inspirational speakers and films provided the club with an interesting year.

Future Homemakers of America sold concessions at the Halloween festival and meat cookbooks as money-making projects. At Christmas they went caroling and gave goodwill boxes to two needy families. During the year two district meetings and one state convention were attended. The year was climaxed by a trip and an annual mother-daughter banquet.

The Nappanee Future Farmers' club, originally titled Future Farmers of America, is organized for the purpose of giving farm boys an opportunity to learn interesting things about farming through programs and field trips and of providing recreation for a group of boys with similar interests.

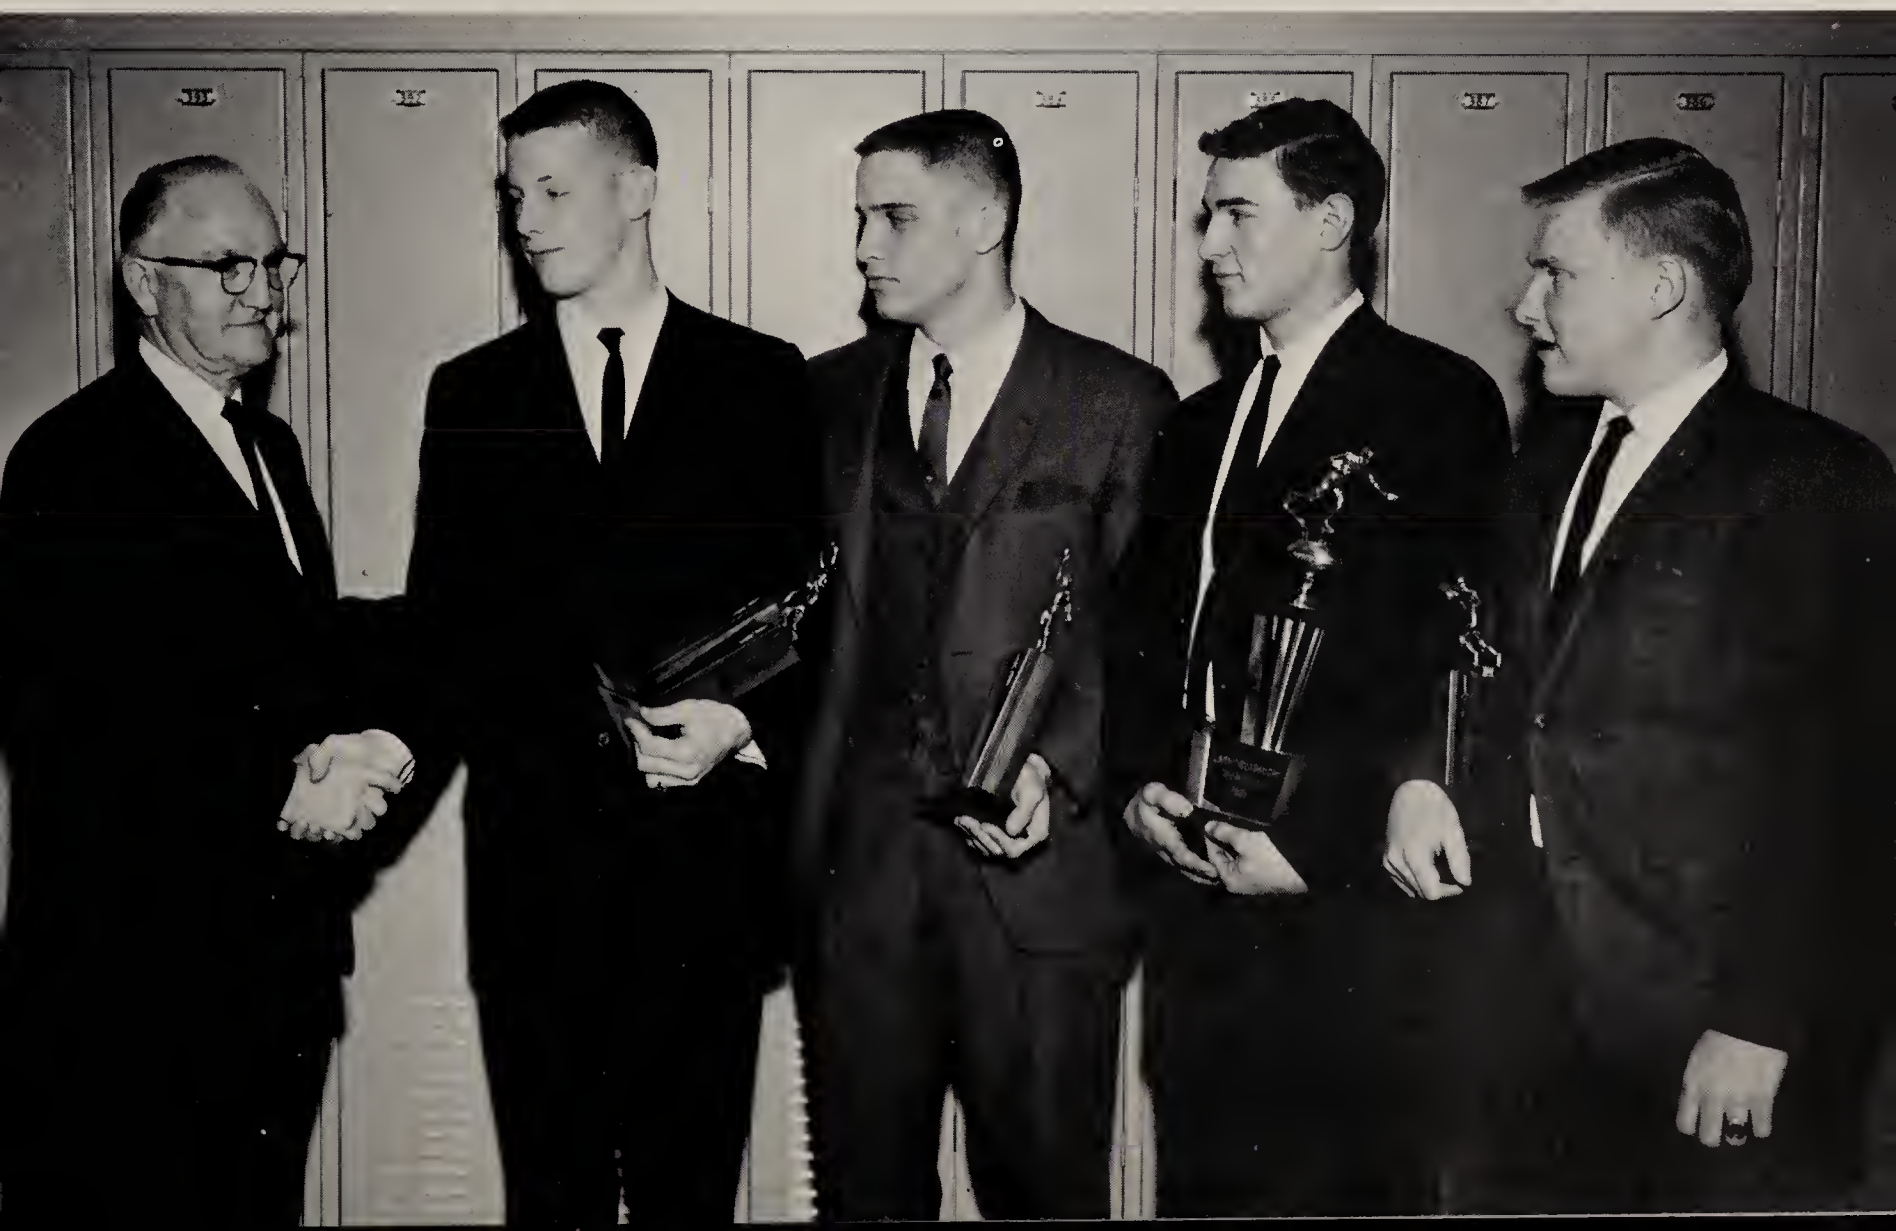
Portions of our Sports

In addition to our many clubs and organizations, sports are also very important on our list of extracurricular activities.

There are many ways in which students may participate in athletics. The varsity sports include basketball, football, and track. Through the Girls' Athletic Association and intramurals both girls and boys may take part in numerous competitive activities.

Athletics in our high school have proven invaluable in the development of the physical condition and the character of Nappanee High School students.



Football requires both brain and brawn.

New head football coach, Paul Gunderman, started the mid-August training with twelve lettermen and forty other eager boys. Coach Gunderman and his assistants, Dave Nelson and Don McKee, guided the Bulldogs to a 4-4 season.

Twelve Nappanee High Schools records were broken: two were scoring the highest number of points in one game and the most yards gained in one season.

The speed of Randy Weddle and the defensive play of Ron Kendall earned the boys spots on the All-Area First Team. Dana Stickel was placed on the All-Area Second Team, and Tod Lehman received Honorable Mention. Ron Kendall was named the most valuable player and team captain.

Senior Lettermen lost by graduation are Mike Geyer, Randy Weddle, Gary Schneck, Ron Kendall, Larry Martindale, Ralph Tobias, Doug Weaver, Larry Andrews, Tom Rohr, Bob Seeber, and Kirby Miller.

The Bulldogs, capably coached by Mr. Dougherty, finished the 1961-62 campaign with a 15-6 record. This is the best record since 1955.

The outstanding game of the season was the hard fought victory over NIHSAA member John Adams.

The Bulldogs also defeated Warsaw and Plymouth to walk off with the Holiday Tourney trophy.

In a first game thriller in the Sectional Tournament the Bulldogs were upset by Middlebury 60-59.

Jerry Lambert won the most valuable player award; Ron Kendall was named captain and won the free throw trophy.

Only Ron Kendall will be lost through graduation. Next year coach Dougherty will have a strong nucleus of veterans--Jerry Lambert, county scoring champ; playmaking guards, Tod Lehman and Alan Hand; and leading rebounder, Robert Berger.

1962 Cindermen qualify for Sectional,

Forty-one cindermen reported regularly for track practice including hurdles, pole vaulting, high jumping, broad jumping, shot putting, and distance running.

Speed was the featured attraction with this year's team. Three school records fell. Randy Weddle ran the 100 in :9.9 and the 220 in :21.9, breaking his own records. The 880 relay team with Dana Stickel substituting for injured Rob Wallace ran the distance in 1:32.5 for a new school record.

Nappanee's regular 880 relay team consisting of Rob Wallace, Tom Dean, Tod Lehman, and Randy Weddle won in the Sectional meet, placed second at the Regional, and ran in the State meet.

Randy Weddle, one of the state's best sprinters, won the Sectional and Regional 100 and 220 and the State 100; he ran third in the 220. Also at the State meet Randy was presented the first Robert S. Hinshaw Memorial Award given to the most outstanding senior athlete in the State track meet; the award is equivalent to the coveted Trester Award in Basketball.

Rob Wallace was second to Weddle in the Sectional 220 and was third in the Regional 220 to qualify for the State meet. Tom Dean was second in the Sectional 100 and placed fifth at Regional.

Nappanee placed second behind Sectional Champion Elkhart High School and Regional Champion Fort Wayne North. In the State meet Nappanee finished in a three way tie for eighth place in a field of eighty-three schools.

Graduating are Larry Andrews, hurdles; Ron Kendall, distance; Rob Wallace, sprints; and Randy Weddle, sprints. Rob Wallace was captain of the team and Randy was selected as the most valuable track participant.

Intramural sports are open to any boy or girl, grades nine through twelve, who wishes to participate. Boys' basketball and bowling for girls and boys are available this year.

Sponsored by Mr. Gunderman, intramural basketball games are held one night each week. Sixty high school boys took part in the games. The three leading scorers are Dean Knepp, Randall Weddle, and Jerry Stouder.

The boys' bowling league, also sponsored by Mr Gunderman, consisted of forty boys. The teams in the league bowled one night a week. Girls' intramural bowling, under the direction of Mrs. Lloyd, gave thirty-seven girls a chance to participate in league bowling. The league, made up of eight teams, bowled one night a week.

Christina Knobel and Linda Umbaugh earned state plaque awards for having completed the required number of points; Carol Hollar was awarded a trophy for the highest number of points earned.

Throughout the year members participate in various sports such as volleyball, basketball, deck tennis, and intramural bowling; the girls regularly take part in play days with Madison, Warsaw, and Elkhart.

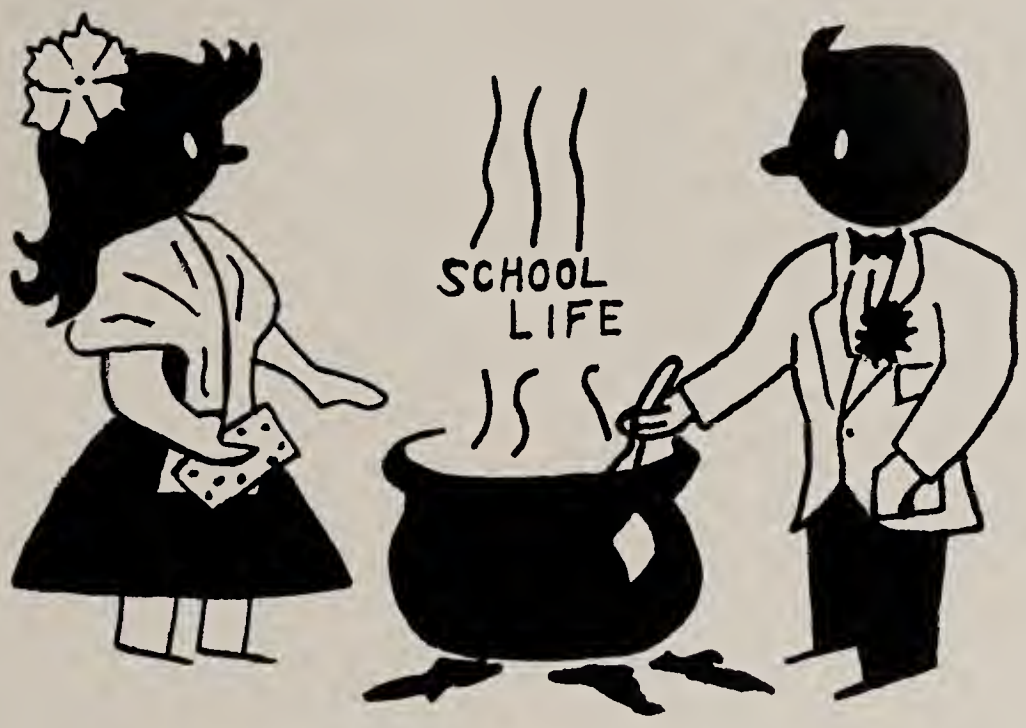
The big "N" is the Pep Club's favorite formation.

The Pep Club and cheerleaders owe a great deal of thanks to their sponsor, Anne Woodhams, who contributed greatly to a successful year.

Diane Meyer, Jaqueline Pletcher, and Cheryl Mullett are the energetic cheerleaders for the B-team.

Varsity cheerleaders Joan Noffsinger, Karen Sue George, Wayne Berger, Susan Hartman, and Carol Hoffer helped cheer the team on to victory throughout the season.



Portions of our School Life

Most students realize that much time and effort must be devoted to study and homework. As the years pass these students learn that not only were the long hours of study rewarding, but that they were also fun. Yet the whole student body at Napanee High School is given the opportunity to relax and participate in many gay and frolic filled events.

To open the school year there were Teen Town dances after the football games, a hayride, and the Halloween Festival. As the months moved on we soon came to December. This month held in store for the students the annual semi-formal Snowball Dance. Soon it was February, and time for the girl ask boy Valentine Dance. Of course we must not forget the other dances, the senior play, and the club and class parties which took place throughout the 1961-62 school year.

The most exciting social event was the Junior-Senior Reception held in the high school. But for seniors the excitement did not end with the prom. They were busy with Baccalaureate, Class Night, Commencement, and finally the senior class trip to Washington, D.C.

Throughout the year many students

Have money, will travel

Linda Muntz and Cindy Landis, both eighth graders, are selling noon concessions to their long line of customers.

Deborah Sinclair cannot decide from which freshman to make her purchase. All three, Jill Rolland, Pat Truex, and Steve Hartman are selling Bulldog pens.

Beginning as eighth graders, students are involved in many money making projects. The proceeds are used for sundry class expenses throughout their school years.

As eight graders the students need money for the traditional trip to numerous museums in Chicago.

Freshmen and sophomores plan principally for the junior year when they will be the host class at the Junior-Senior Reception.

By the time the students are seniors they hope to have earned enough money to finance the greater portion of the long anticipated class trip.

Sophomores Doris Callander, Pam Osborne, and Roger Holdeman have plenty of candy for sale.

Nedra Jensen, Betty Martin, and John Yeager are high magazine salesmen for the junior class.

The 1961-62 Homecoming will be an unforgettable night for Her Majesty and court. Members of the court are Evelyn Ingraham, freshman; Marie Popowzak, sophomore; Susan Hartman, junior; Queen Joan Noffsinger; Pamela Phillips, senior; Mary Duckwall, 1960-61 Queen; and Sandra Warren, senior.

The third annual Homecoming at Nappanee High School was again sponsored by the Student Council.

During the half-time program presented by the marching band and highlighting the Homecoming festivities was the crowning of Miss Joan Noffsinger as 1961-62 Homecoming Queen.

A week before Homecoming the three lower high school classes met to select an attendant to represent each of their respective classes. The seniors elected three queen candidates from their class, and later the entire student body chose by ballot the Homecoming Queen from these three girls. The other two seniors served as honor attendants in the queen's court.

Joan Noffsinger wears a queen's smile as she is crowned Homecoming Queen of 1962 by Mary Duckwall.

Mingling couples dance, eat, and chat.

Mr. Irresistible, Robin Wallace, enjoys being crowned and receiving a big kiss from cheerleader Susan Hartman. Robin also appears irresistible to cheerleaders Joan Noffsinger, Carol Hoffer, and Karen Sue George.

Frosty the Snowman smiles in approval as Elaine Pippenger and Jerry Lambert dance at the annual Snowball. Teen Town sponsors Mr. and Mrs. Bob Schmeltz also have fun dancing to the soothing music.

Couples Dave McGrew and Jenny Price, and Maribeth Price and Craig Miller display their prize-winning valentines at the Sweetheart Dance sponsored by Teen Town.

Fellow hillbillies John Kindig and Duncan Sinclair dip out some joy juice to John Yarian at the Dogpatch Dance sponsored by the science clubs.

The 1962 reception theme is Sea Fantasy.

Sea Fantasy, the theme of the Junior-Senior Reception, was effectively carried out with cool blue colors, bulbous fish and colorful fish nets, mermaids, and a laden treasure chest.

After a delicious banquet the Welcome was given by Junior Class President, John Yeager, and the Response was presented by the Senior Class President, Don Shaw. The guests enjoyed a song by a vocal octet consisting of junior girls who were accompanied by accordionist, Irma Fike.

Everyone was fascinated by D. P. Gegax, a hypnotist, who had five students going on an imaginary fishing trip, attending the movies, soaring on an airplane ride, watching a plate float through the air, and doing numerous amusing acts.

Music during the banquet and for the prom afterwards was provided by the Continentals.

Under hypnosis Carol Rohr and Karole Keck enjoy driving a little red sports car. But poor Marvin Eastlund almost misses a corner.

Even hypnotist D. P. Gegax has to laugh at Roger Holdeman and Bob Seeber during their love scene in which Roger portrays Natalie Wood and Bob is none other than Marilyn Monroe.

What's this? Doing the twist in formals at the prom!

Senior Highlights bring an end to

The graduating class listen to the Reverend Mr. Noffsinger's Baccalaureate sermon.

Principal Weddle presents a scholarship to Norma Jean Culp at Class Night.

Parents and friends saw the Class of 1962 in their processional for the Baccalaureate service in the Methodist Church at 3:00 P.M. on Sunday, May 20. Ministers participating in the service were the Reverend Herschel McCord, the Reverend Howard Walker, the Reverend Robert Fields, and the Reverend Mervin Adkins.

Junior and senior choir members sang "The Heavens Are Telling" and "No Man Is an Island."

"What Must I Do?" was the title of the address delivered by the Reverend Ross Noffsinger.

The principal purpose of the Senior Class Night program is to give special recognition to seniors who have earned special merits for their various academic departments and for their services to their school, and who have been awarded scholarships for their scholastic excellence.

A few of the seniors performed to display their talents musically and dramatically. And thus concluded the 1962 Senior Class Night program.

The Class of '62 proudly listen to the words, "Graduates, we congratulate you."

On May 24, 1962, seventy-three seniors marched into the gym as the band played the processional "Pomp and Circumstance." "What is required of you?" was the theme of the speaker Dr. Charles Anspach, President Emeritus, Central Michigan University. During the program the graduating band members joined the band to play the numbers "Findlandia" by Jean Sibelius and "West Side Story" by Leonard Bernstein. It was an impressive occasion when the seniors received their diplomas to become the graduates of 1962. As the band played the recessional "Sine Nomine" the graduates marched out.

The class of '62 took a fun-packed trip to Washington, D.C. In a few compact days in the Capital City the class visited the Washington, Lincoln, and Jefferson Memorials. It also toured the Capitol, the Smithsonian Institute, Mount Vernon, and many other historic places. Each person was awed at Arlington National Cemetery and the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. Everyone was excited when President Kennedy and other dignitaries appeared for a meeting at the hotel in which the class stayed.

The return trip included a brief tour of Gettysburg, Pennsylvania.

Long to be cherished will be the memorable closing of a high school career.

The cool cats in the shades happen to be the senior boys waiting for the buses that will take them on their senior trip.
